

Compass: what to expect

For the family. September 2026.

What Compass is

---

Compass turns an iPad into a calm board for an older adult living with cognitive decline: the time, the day, the date, a line from you, and what comes next. Cassi, the voice on the board, answers the same question the same patient way every time. Your own recorded reminders play back in your voice, word for word.

What Compass is not

- It is not a medical device. It does not diagnose, treat, or monitor a condition.
- It is not an emergency service. If someone is in danger, call 911.
- It is not a replacement for you. It sits between your visits and calls and holds the answers.

What it costs

- The first week is free. After that, $29 a month, everything included. No hardware to buy from us.
- If Compass is not right for your family in the first 30 days of paying, tell us and we refund it in full.
- Pause or cancel any time at compass.care/manage.html. If care ends, we stop billing right away and refund the rest of that month.

What you need

---

- An iPad from 2017 or later, on Wi-Fi at your loved one's home, on a stand, plugged in.
- One iPhone in the family for the caregiver app.

Your loved one's privacy

- Cassi only listens after the bar at the bottom is tapped. There is no wake word and no always-on microphone.
- What is said to Cassi is turned into text, answered, and spoken back by outside providers we pay: Deepgram for speech and Cassi's voice, Cerebras for the words of the answer.

Under our agreements they do not use it to train their models.

- Your reminders, messages, schedule, and the board's settings are stored for your family only. Delete your account from the app and it is all removed.
- The full policy is at compasse-shelly.github.io/compasse-privacy.
